

There is no application deadline for these mini-grants and they are available until/unless funds allotted have been exhausted. The only exception to this continuous cycle will likely be the Feb-April 2006 period. Operating on 5 year contracts from the National Library of Medicine, the current contract period ends April 30, 2006. Funds will not be carried over from one contract to the next, and ample time is allowed to complete projects successfully. New activities may not be funded in the first quarter of 2006, however, the intention is to continue funding these mini-awards until the end of January 2006 and they will resume again by April 1, 2006.
